What we do

We take on the whole job — the structure, the wet areas, the cabinetry and the finish — so you are not chasing five trades and holding the risk yourself. Most of our work is bathrooms, kitchens, decks and fencing, and most of it comes from people who saw a job we did.

Bathrooms
Full strip-out, waterproofing, tiling, fit-off

Kitchens
Cabinetry, stone tops, splashbacks, appliances

Decking
Composite and hardwood, on a levelled subframe

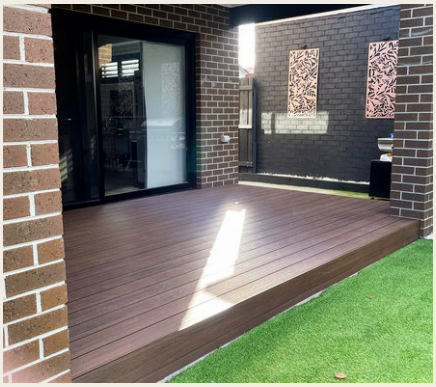

Fencing
Pickets, palings, posts and gates

Tiling & paving
Indoor, alfresco, travertine and porcelain

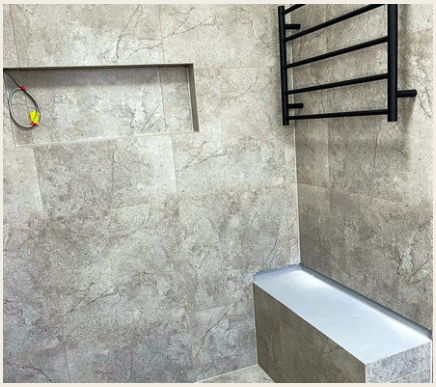

Structural
Wall removals, new openings, plaster and set

HOW WE WORK

- Free quotes
  We measure on site and send an itemised scope with one price.
- Photographed stages
  You get photos of the membrane, the framing and the subframe — not just the finish.
- One crew, start to finish
  The people who quote the job are the people on site. You are not handed to a subcontractor you have never met.
- We leave it clean
  Rubbish taken away, floors protected, and the room left ready to use the day we finish.

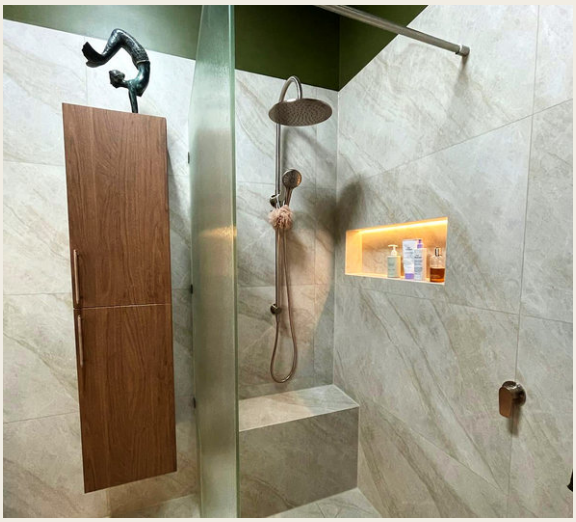

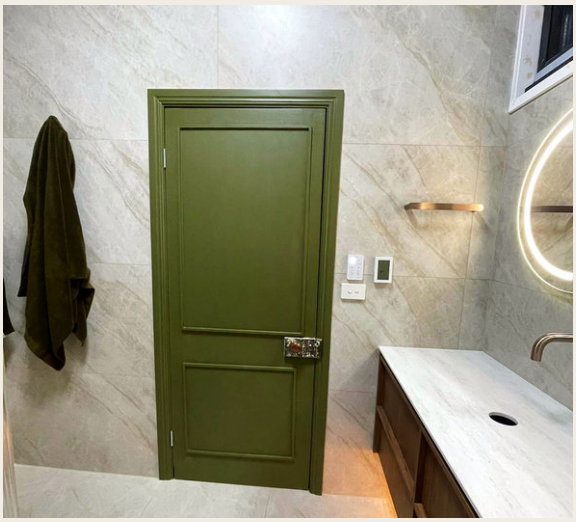

Bathroom · full renovation

Olive and stone ensuite

Taken back to the frame and rebuilt. Full-height stone-look porcelain, a hobless walk-in shower with a tiled bench and linear drain, concealed warm LED under the vanity and behind the mirror, and brushed tapware throughout.

Wet areas are membraned and left to cure before a single tile goes down — bond breakers in the corners, the hob and the niche sealed, the floor falls checked to the drain.

Bathrooms

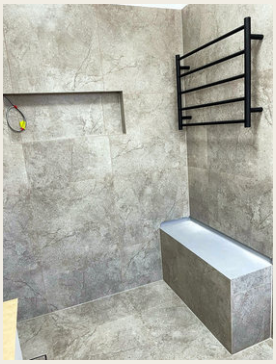

Herringbone, brass and large-format stone

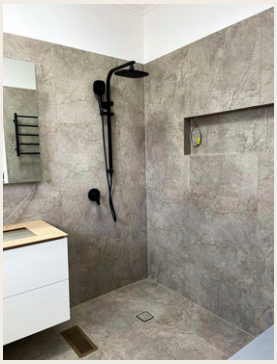

Floor tile set out from the centre line, twin vessel basins on a stone top and wall-mounted brass mixers. Elsewhere, big-format porcelain with tight joints, frameless screens, recessed niches and tiled bench seats.

DURING THE FIT-OUT

Kitchen · full renovation

Greige, stone and a butler's pantry

Handleless satin cabinetry to the ceiling, speckled stone tops, a stack-bond gloss splashback lit from under the overheads, and a built-in oven and microwave tower. The butler's pantry runs off the side so the mess stays out of the kitchen.

BUTLER'S PANTRY

Kitchens

Out with the old

Old kitchens stripped back, services moved where they need to go, new cabinetry, tops and splashbacks. Same room, different house.

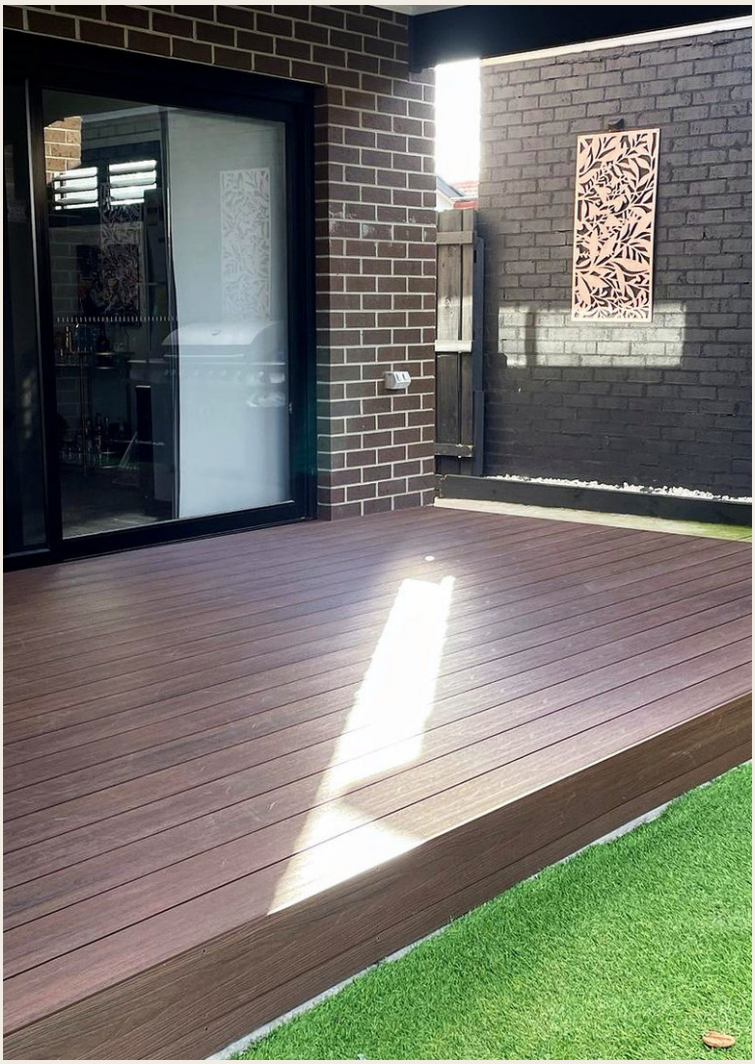

Decking

Decks that stay flat

Composite and hardwood. The boards are the part you see; the subframe is the part that decides whether it still looks like this in five years — levelled bearers, correct joist centres, fall away from the house and the right gap for the board.

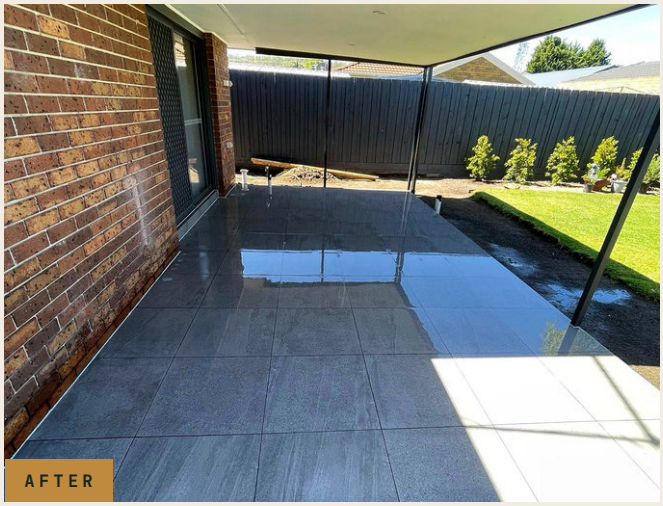

THE SUBFRAME UNDER IT

Outdoor tiling & paving

From dirt to finished alfresco

Base prepared and compacted, drainage and conduits set, then laid to fall so water leaves the house. Two jobs, start and finish.

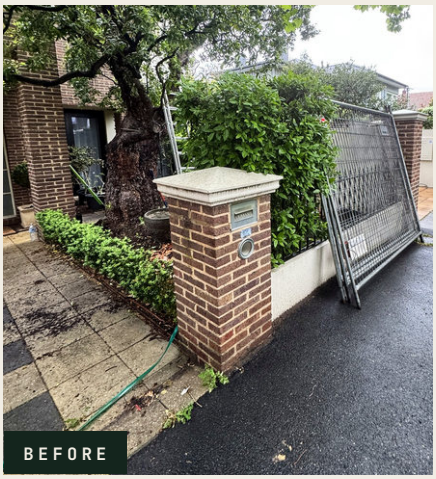

Fencing · front boundary

A black batten fence, end to end

Posts and rails set and levelled first, then vertical battens fixed with an even gap the whole run. A wide gate across the driveway and a second one to the path, both hung off the same frame so the lines carry straight through from one side of the frontage to the other.

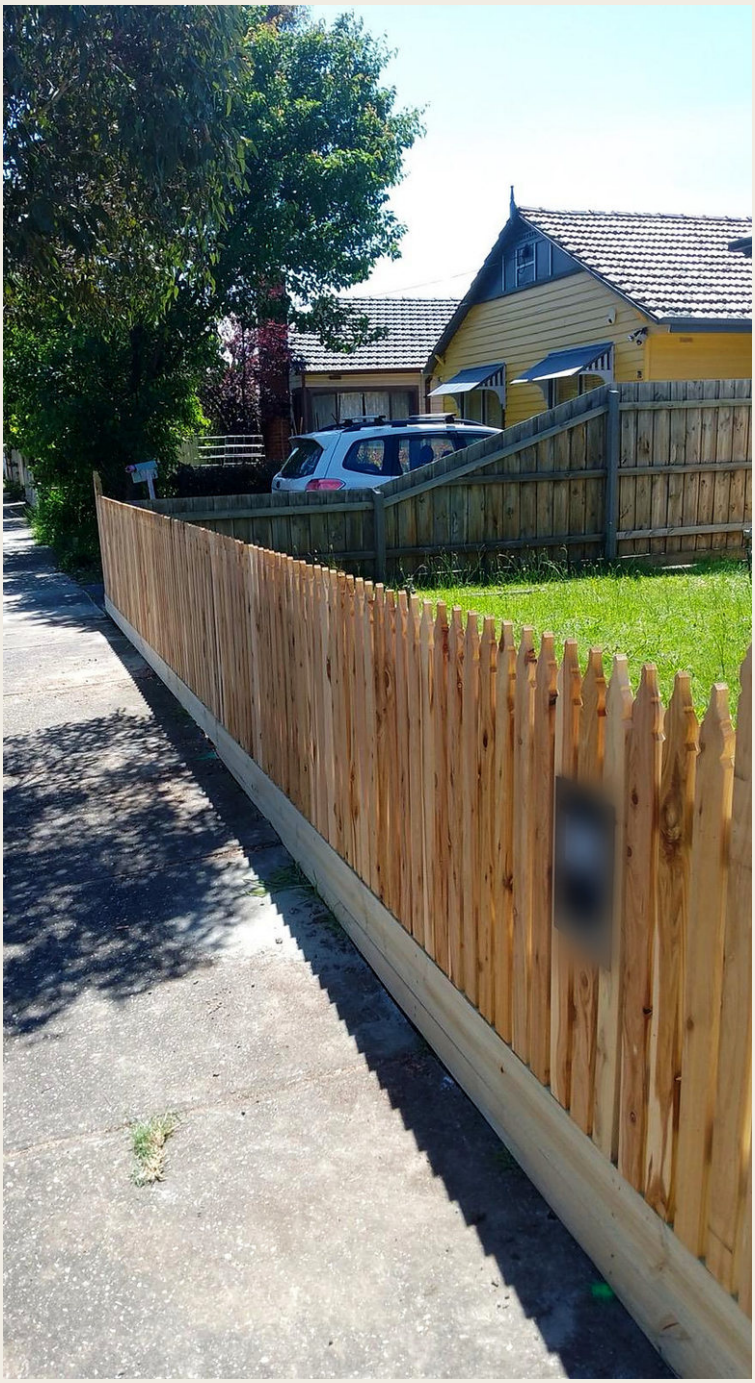

The frame is the job. Once the battens are on, nobody can see whether the posts are plumb and the rails run true — so that stage gets photographed and sent before it is covered.

Fencing & structural

Pickets, posts and everything behind the plaster

Treated pine pickets on new posts set in concrete, run true to the footpath grade. Inside, removing walls, framing new openings, insulation, plasterboard and setting — the stage nobody photographs, and the one that decides whether the finish sits straight.
